

£70m funding to address building safety professional shortages

New £70 million funding has been announced to address shortages in building safety professions and help build 1.5 million homes.