

Action plan launched to build stronger communities

The government is launching a rallying call for action, setting out the first steps towards a more connected, cohesive and resilient United Kingdom