The AFCD has launched a series of publicity and education activities themed "Discovering Robin's Nest Country Park – The Interconnected Ecology and Landscape", in which Discovering Robin's Nest Country Park Hiking Challenge activity was kick-started today. Through promotional videos and the activity, the public is encouraged to explore the rich green tourism resources of Robin's Nest, which symbolises the ecological integration of Hong Kong and Shenzhen, from multiple perspectives.

RNCP embodies the shared aspiration of Hong Kong and Shenzhen for a beautiful ecological environment, making it highly significant. It is hoped that both sides, being geographically interdependent, will continue to strengthen co-operation in areas such as resilience to climate change, development of Northern Metropolis in Hong Kong, technological innovations in ecology and environment, alignment of ecological and environmental planning and standard, development of the beautiful Loop as well as improvement of urban ecological spaces.

Following the opening ceremony, about 40 nature enthusiasts with extensive hiking experience from Shenzhen and Hong Kong embarked on the first hike of Discovering Robin's Nest Country Park Hiking Challenge to enhance the exchanges and foster friendship between the two places.

In addition, the public and tourists can participate in the Discovering Robin's Nest Country Park Hiking Challenge activity from today until February 28 next year. Participants need to register on the Discovering Robin's Nest Country Park Hiking Challenge website (www.discoverrngcp.hk) and visit the eight designated checkpoints along the two hiking trails in RNCP, the Robin's Nest Country Trail and Lin Ma Hang Country Trail, scanning QR codes with their smartphones at checkpoints to record their completion.
