

Astronaut with physical disability could be first to enter orbit after ground-breaking agreement

UK astronaut John McFall could become the first person with a physical disability to live in orbit, thanks to an agreement signed between the UK government and US commercial space company Vast.