

How the vote was won

This year marks 100 years since the Representation of the People Act 1918 granted women over 30 with certain property qualifications the right to vote. We take a look at some of the key people, places and moment in the campaign.Read more

Recleration: the new heritage

Beneath London's Southbank Centre, a landmark brutalist monument, lies a completely different kind of heritage.Read more

In Suburbia: Cottage Exhibitions

During the 20th century a number of houses have been built for demonstration purposes as much as occupation. One idea that caught the public imagination was for an area of dwellings in a variety of designs that could be visited as a temporary exhibition. The purpose of such displays was often to show examples of well-designed, low-cost housing or showcase innovation in planning and building methods and materials. There were precedents for this kind of display but it was theRead more

Forgotten heroes of the First World War

The Labour Corps of the First World War comprised mostly of a multi-ethnic army of workers, without whom the war would have ground to a halt.Read more

Pass the popcorn: a brief introduction to cinemas

Here we take a quick look at how England's love for film inspired the construction of many glamorous and decorative cinemas.Read more