Legia Warszawa vs Rangers FC – travel advice

Glasgow Rangers will be playing Legia Warszawa on 22 August, 8pm CET, at the Legia Stadium in Warsaw.

Getting to the stadium

The Legia Warsaw Municipal Stadium (also known as the Polish Army Stadium) is located on 3 Łazienkowska street in Warsaw.

The nearest bus stops are Legia Stadion and Rozbrat. Information on public transport connections is available on the website of the Warsaw Public Transport Authority.

If you are travelling from Modlin Airport you would have to take a train or a taxi.

If travelling by taxi, you are advised to use major taxi companies, such as Sawa Taxi (+48 22 644 44 44) or Ele Taxi (+48 22 811 11 11). If you do pick up a taxi on the street, always check the per kilometre price, which should be clearly marked on the side of the taxi, before getting in. Some taxis operating in areas frequented by tourists can charge highly inflated price.

Safety tips

If you are a UK National and you plan to travel to Poland to watch the match, it is advisable to:

- Keep your passport safe, fill out the last page (emergency contacts) and keep plenty of copies of the data page.
- Consider having adequate travel insurance while travelling.
- Obey Polish laws, regulations and instructions from local authorities. If you are arrested, the British Embassy cannot get you out of police detention until the Police proceedings are completed. The British Embassy do not provide legal advice.
- Ask for a receipt from taxi drivers so your belongings can be retrieved if left in a taxi.
- If you drink alcohol, drink responsibly and be aware that alcoholic drinks may be stronger in Poland than in the UK. Don't leave drinks or food unattended and beware of accepting drinks from casual acquaintances.
- Check your bill carefully when buying drinks in bars and nightclubs.
- As in any other city, beware of pickpockets and bag snatchers at airports, railway stations, around the town centre and when using public transport. Only carry what you need, leave spare cash and valuables in hotel safety deposits.

Seminar for planners on the Scottish coalfields

The Coal Authority will be talking about Britain's coal mining legacy and managing the environmental impacts of historical mining within the local planning process at a half-day event hosted by Glasgow City Council on Wednesday, 4 September 2019,

There will be a presentation by Melanie Lindsley and Deb Roberts from our Planning Development Team, before a question and answer session and an opportunity to view local coal abandonment plans and photographs from our archive.

If you are a planning officer with any council on the Scottish coalfield and would like to book a place at the seminar, which is CPD accredited, contact: planningconsultation@coal.gov.uk

Melanie Lindsley said the seminar, the latest in a series, will be a great opportunity to engage with local authority partners in Scotland and added:

The Coal Authority deals with more than 180 Local Planning Authorities (LPAs) in England, Scotland and Wales and we provide more than 9,000 consultation responses each year.

We began proactive engagement with LPAs last year to discuss and review the process, to better understand the issues planners face in the former coalfields and consider how we can improve our consultation processes.

LPAs are able to access our Development High Risk Area and Surface Coal Resource data sets and we provide them with guidance, which we update every two years.

However, it is always good to speak to planning colleagues in person and these events are an excellent way of doing this and have been very well received.

Event details:

Venue: Glasgow City Council, Exchange House, 231 George Street, Glasgow, G1 1RX.

Time: Wednesday, 4 September 2019, 2.30pm to 4.30pm.

It's time to #GetBizzy

Entrepreneurs play an important role in driving economic growth and innovation. Whether they're establishing a new service or inventing a product, entrepreneurs can change the lives of people across the world with their creations.

Today (21 August) is World Entrepreneurs' Day, a global event that raises awareness of entrepreneurs and the work they do.

Our register holds data for more than 4.2 million companies. The number of young directors aged 16-24 has grown by 35% over the last 5 years, from 87,477 in 2014 to 117,810 as of July this year.

As an organisation firmly committed to supporting the government's Industrial Strategy, we want to play our part to make sure the UK remains the best place to do business in the future.

That's why we're launching our #GetBizzy campaign in partnership with the Great British Entrepreneurship Awards. Our aim is to help inspire the country's next generation of entrepreneurs and make sure 16-24 year olds are aware of who we are, what we do and how our tools and resources can help them take their business ideas to the next level.

Our chief executive and the Registrar of Companies in England and Wales, Louise Smyth, said:

As an organisation, we aim to support the government's Industrial Strategy by driving confidence in the UK economy.

It's incredibly important, therefore, to recognise both the work of young entrepreneurs and the positive contribution they are making to the UK's business environment.

Our blog has a range of information about company services and the information we hold on the register. Over the coming months, our #GetBizzy campaign will feature guest blog posts from organisations across the UK who support young entrepreneurs. We'll also share the stories of start-ups and established businesses set up by young entrepreneurs.

So if you're a young entrepreneur looking to grow your business, or perhaps you have your business idea but don't know where to start, it's time for you to #GetBizzy and make the most of our tools and resources.
