

Key milestone for the redevelopment of St Marys Hospital

Imperial College Healthcare NHS Trust has formally submitted its strategic outline case for the redevelopment of St Mary's Hospital in Paddington.

Trust staff receive academic promotions at Imperial College London

Trust staff members have been promoted as part of the latest round of academic promotions at Imperial College London.

Imperial College Healthcare to join pioneering study to improve prostate cancer diagnosis using AI

Imperial College Healthcare is joining a new study which will look at a new AI technology to help reduce diagnostic errors and speed up diagnosis of prostate cancer.

Device enables people with arm disabilities following a stroke to do more physical training

New study shows a rehabilitation device can increase arm exercise in stroke patients to aid their recovery, without the need for supervision in hospital by a therapist.

New blood test could help doctors identify viral infections more easily

Clinical researchers from the NIHR Imperial Biomedical Research Centre (BRC) have developed a new test which could help doctors to more easily distinguish what kind of infection a patient may have and prescribe effective treatments more quickly.