

Better protection for victims at risk of violence as fee scrapped

From next month, survivors of violence and domestic abuse will no longer have to pay over £300 to ensure their abuser cannot track them down via public records.