

Better protection for victims from domestic abusers

Victims of domestic abuse will be better protected as part of a new law ensuring even more abusers face tougher management from police and probation.