

BGS release borehole information packs for the Glasgow Observatory

The British Geological Survey (BGS) is laying the foundations for future mine water heat energy research, releasing detailed information packs including drilling logs, borehole construction details and overview hydraulic test data from the new geenergy observatory in Glasgow.