

British Government announces 41 winners of 2022 Marshall Scholarships

Washington, DC (13 December 2021) –The British Government announced today the 41 winners of the 2022 Marshall Scholarships. The winners, considered among the top undergraduate university students and recent graduates in the United States, were chosen following a rigorous, months-long selection process. They will begin graduate studies at top academic institutions across the United Kingdom beginning in September next year.

The latest class of the UK's 68-year-old Marshall Scholarship programme reflects a wide range of cultural, academic and geographic backgrounds. Among the cohort are nationally-recognized LGBT rights advocates, artists, award-winning documentary filmmakers and scientists conducting cutting-edge research on Artificial Intelligence and space travel. This year's class also features the largest number of Service Academy graduates in the scholarship's history, with seven Marshall Scholars hailing from the US Military Academy (three), US Naval Academy (two) and the US Air Force Academy (two).

"Marshall Scholars continue to represent the very best of American society, from their ingenuity and creativity to their commitment to public service," said Dame Karen Pierce, British Ambassador to the United States. "For decades, the scholarship has played an important role in supporting young future leaders such as these and I am excited for them to continue their development at some of the UK's top universities." The program received nearly 1,000 applications from top undergraduate students representing institutions across the United States. Of the 33 US universities represented, nearly a third are from state or public universities. The University of New Hampshire won its first ever scholarship and the University of Maryland – Baltimore County (1993) and Montana State University (2013) won for only the second time in their respective histories.

"We are delighted to host them in the UK and welcome them into the long and proud tradition of Marshall Scholars who have contributed so much to the US, UK and the world," said John Raine, Chair of the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission. "I am pleased in particular to welcome Scholars from Universities who have not sent Marshall Scholars before and hope even more US Universities will encourage candidates next year"

The program is principally funded by the British Government, but also benefits from generous support through partnership arrangements with world-leading British academic institutions, allowing winners to pursue graduate degrees in almost any academic subject at any university in the UK. The 2022 class will take up their studies at 21 different institutions across the UK starting next September, ranging from London institutions such as King's College London to the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland.

The scholarship program also continues to receive generous support from the Association of Marshall Scholars (AMS), the official alumni organisation of the Marshall Scholarship. The British Schools & Universities Foundation (BUSF) also provides generous support and funds for a scholarship.

The full list of 2022 winners are:

Student	US University	UK University
Yasa Baig	Duke University	University of Cambridge
Samuel Brody	United States Air Force Academy	University of Oxford
Allyson Burba	United States Air Force Academy	London School of Economics
Julia Chaffers	Princeton University	University College London
Herman Chavez	University of California – Los Angeles	King’s College London
Maggie Chen	Harvard University	Imperial College London
Kennedy Crowder	University of Pennsylvania	University of Bristol
Aissa Dearing-Benton	Howard University	University of Oxford
Jackson Foster	University of Alabama – Tuscaloosa	Durham University
Isabelle Galko	Southern Methodist University	University of Oxford
Matthew Gannon	Dartmouth College	University of Manchester
Rohit Goyal	Yale University	London School of Economics
Nicolas Graber-Mitchell	Amherst College	University of Oxford
Tommy Hall	United States Military Academy	University of Cambridge
Kade Heckel	United States Naval Academy	University of Sussex
Myya Helm	West Virginia University	Cardiff University
Callie Holley	New York University	Birmingham City University
Jonathan Kuo	University of California – Berkeley	University of Manchester
Abrita Kuthumi	University of New Hampshire	University of Sussex
Abdullah Kuziez	Washington University in St. Louis	University of Oxford
Annie Li	Emory University	University of Oxford
David Li	Massachusetts Institute of Technology	University of Cambridge
Maja Lynn	University of Pittsburgh	Queen’s University Belfast
James Marek	Duke University	University of Edinburgh
Greta Markey	Carnegie Mellon University	University of East Anglia
Andrew McDonald	Michigan State University	University of Cambridge

Student	US University	UK University
Kennedy Miller	University of North Carolina – Chapel Hill	Royal Academy of Music
Lydia Nyacheio	University of Wisconsin – Madison	University of Manchester
Ifeyinwa Ojukwu	Syracuse University	University College London
Chinaza Okonkwo	University of Pennsylvania	University of Oxford
Nina Potischman	Ponoma College	University of Exeter
Akhil Rajan	Yale University	University of Oxford
Evan Robertson	United States Naval Academy	University of Strathclyde
Emma San Martin	United States Military Academy	University of Glasgow
Joshua Slaughter	University of Maryland – Baltimore County	University of Edinburgh
RB Smith	Williams College	University of Edinburgh
Osimiri Sprowal	Temple University	University of Warwick
Berenice Sylverain	Columbia University	University of Oxford
Henry Thompson	United States Naval Academy	King's College London
Nathaniel Trost	University of Alabama – Tuscaloosa	Goldsmiths, University of London
Max Yates	Montana State University	University of Cambridge

About the Marshall Scholarship

Named for Secretary of State George C. Marshall, the Marshall Scholarship Program began in 1953 as a gesture of gratitude to the people of the United States for the assistance that the UK received after World War II under the Marshall Plan. Since that time, it has remained uniquely positioned among national scholarships for its prestige and scope: offering talented young Americans the chance to study any academic subject at UK universities of their choice for up to 3 years. This has given rise to an unprecedented breadth of expertise in almost every academic field, producing numerous university presidents, six Pulitzer Prize winners, one Nobel Laureate, fourteen MacArthur Fellows, two-academy-Award nominees, two US Supreme Court Justices and a NASA Astronaut.

With over 2,200 scholarships awarded to date, Marshall Scholars are leading the conversation and direction of some of the most critical issues of our time. Notable winners of the scholarship include:

- Supreme Court Associate Justices Stephen Breyer and Neil Gorsuch
- William Burns, Director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency
- Pulitzer Prize-winning authors Anne Applebaum, Tom Friedman, Jeffrey Gettleman and Dan Yergin
- Ray Dolby, Founder of Dolby Laboratories and 1997 winner of the National Medal of Technology and Innovation
- Dr. Dan Barouch, Leading COVID-19 vaccine researcher and William Bosworth Castle Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School

- Reid Hoffman, Philanthropist and founder of social networking platform LinkedIn
- Anne McClain, NASA Astronaut who served aboard the International Space Station in 2018
- Jocelyn Benson, Secretary of State for the State of Michigan
- Patrick Hovakimian, Associate Deputy Attorney General, US Department of Justice
- Joshua Oppenheimer, Academy Award-nominated documentary film director of The Act of Killing
- Nancy Gibbs, Former Managing Editor of TIME Magazine
- Roger Tsien, 2008 Nobel Prize Winner in Chemistry
- R.F. Kuang, Author of the Poppy War book series and 2020 winner of the Astounding Award for Best New Writer

For media inquiries about the Marshall Scholarship and the recipients, please contact Josh Stanton at Joshua.Stanton@fcdo.gov.uk.