

BSR to introduce more proportionate and targeted approach for higher-risk building assessments

The Building Safety Regulator will update its approach to building assessment certificates, providing greater support for duty holders while maintaining high standards of building safety.