

Business and civil society leaders brought together to help build digital ID system that works for the public

Senior leaders from business and civil society are being brought in to support the Government to deliver a digital ID system that works for the public.