

Chancellor backs former coalfield areas with new investment to end decline and encourage local talent

Communities in former coalfield areas of Britain will benefit from new jobs and business opportunities, as the Chancellor confirms investment in projects that support local talent and boost growth.