

Closure of loophole to keep terrorists and extremists out of the UK

A law has been introduced to prevent British citizenship being reinstated to people considered a national security risk following a successful initial appeal.