

Companies House is reviewing the retention period for dissolved company records

Companies House is reviewing the retention period for dissolved company records, following concerns that records should be held for longer than 20 years.