

Deep-ocean current creates tsunami risk for Falkland Islands

The Falkland Islands are at risk from tsunamis caused by underwater landslides, according to new research by scientists from the British Geological Survey and Heriot-Watt University.