The Electrical and Mechanical Services Department (EMSD) and the Hong Kong Electrical and Mechanical Trade Promotion Working Group today (March 7) jointly held the Electrical and Mechanical (E&M) Expo 2025.

With the theme "E&M, Together We Forge Ahead", the Expo provided information on career prospects, continuing education and training of the E&M industry. Trade representatives were invited to share the latest trade developments at career talks.

The Director of Electrical and Mechanical Services, Mr Poon Kwok-ying, said at the Expo that the EMSD is committed to driving the development of the E&M industry through digitalisation and the application of innovative technologies. He encouraged young people to seize opportunities and join the industry to pursue their aspirations and showcase their talents.

The representative of the Hong Kong Electrical and Mechanical Trade Promotion Working Group and President of the Hong Kong Federation of Electrical and Mechanical Contractors Limited, Mr Emil Yu, said that with the launch of major construction projects, the prospects for the E&M industry are promising. He expressed hope that more young people will join this industry, which has significant development potential, to inject new impetus.

Established in 2012, the Hong Kong Electrical and Mechanical Trade Promotion Working Group includes members from the EMSD. The Working Group is committed to promoting the sustainable development of the E&M industry.
