

England's non-woodland trees freely mapped for first time

England's trees outside woodlands have been mapped by satellite and laser are freely available for first time revealing they make up 30% of nation's tree cover.