

Environment Agency scientists seek new ways to save mussel power

Mussel samples are a yardstick for coastal water quality. But with mussel numbers in decline, scientists are inventing new ways to sample waters.