

Environment Agency urges farmers to start preparations for winter slurry storage

Environment Agency stepping up support for farmers facing slurry storage issues through another potentially difficult winter season.