

Environmental reforms to break planning system gridlock

Britain's broken planning and development system is rewired to accelerate infrastructure delivery and homebuilding while safeguarding the environment