

Equal pay system to be improved as government launches consultation process

Government launches consultation, inviting businesses, workers, and civil society to help shape the next steps on equal pay reform