

European Groupings of Territorial Cooperation (EGTCs) gather in Athens to discuss the Future of Europe

The EGTCs, as the first European cooperation structure defined by EU law, play a key role in strengthening cross-border, transnational and interregional cooperation within the European Union and beyond. They often serve as laboratories of the European Union, testing new and innovative ways of cooperating across borders and work on practical projects aimed at improving the lives of EU citizens. As such, the EGTCs that together make up the CoR's EGTC Platform, gathered in Athens on 4 May to discuss their views on Europe's common future.

The representatives of the EGTCs had an opportunity to discuss their vision of Europe with the EU Commissioner Dimitris Avramopoulos who underlined the importance of this cross-border cooperation and the role of the EGTCs in the future of Europe. He underlined that "What unites European citizens, today and tomorrow, is a common vision and perspective. Local and regional authorities have a key role to play in bringing the EU closer to the citizen and EGTCs make an important contribution towards achieving this".

The chair of the CoR's COTER commission Petr Osvald underlined the fact that "The EGTCs are unique entities, both supranational, truly European constructions, but at the same time sub-national. This uniqueness gives them a special perspective that is important to take into account when re-thinking Europe".

First vice chair of the COTER commission, Spyridon Spyros said, "The European Union is at a key moment in its history, with decisions being taken over the coming months shaping its long-term direction. In charting this future, we must remember the remarkable achievements of our Union which can be exemplified from the broad peace our once divided continent enjoys, down to the daily, practical work of EGTCs".

MEPs Eliza Voseberg (EPP) and Eva Kaili (S&D), as well as CoR member Michel Delebarre, also gave their views on the European Union and highlighted the important role EGTCs can have in the European project. EGTCs look beyond national borders; and they rethink how we work in Europe as they are no longer bound by purely national interests, but by the interests of their cross-border regions, or even wider, by transnational interests.

The participants had the opportunity to hear about innovative approaches to this cross-border cooperation from Pablo M. Rivera Búa, Executive Director, EGTC Eurocity Chavez-Verin (PT-ES), Loïc Delhuvette, Director of EGTC Eurometropole Lille-Kortrijk-Tournai (FR-BE), Gyula Ockay, Director of CESCO (HU EGTCs) and Xavier Bernard-Sans, Director of EGTC Eurorégion Pyrénées-Méditerranée (ES-FR). The presented projects have a high level of transferability, and through the EGTC Platform, EGTCs can find information about tried and tested practices that have made border regions more attractive and helped them work better for their inhabitants.

During the event, three Greek EGTCs presented their work; they were represented by Vassilis Xenos Gavrielis, Director EGTC AMPHICTYONY, Giorgos Pappous, Director EGTC EFXINI POLI, and Giannis Anastasiadis, Director EGTC HELICAS.

The debates and viewpoints on the Future of Europe will feed into a declaration that will be shared with all the EGTCs and put forward for adoption at the next EGTC Platform meeting in October.

WiFi4EU: From tomorrow municipalities can start applying for EU financing of free wireless internet hotspots in public spaces

The first call for municipality applications for free Wi-Fi hotspots will open tomorrow, Tuesday 15 May, at 13:00 (CEST). Through this call some 1,183 municipalities will receive a WiFi4EU voucher of €15,000 to finance Wi-Fi equipment and its installation in public spaces. Upon receiving the voucher, municipalities will have to offer secure Wi-Fi services, free-of-charge and without adverts, for at least 3 years. Funding will only be provided for networks that do not duplicate already existing private or public free Wi-Fi services of a similar quality in the same public spaces. To be eligible to apply, municipalities need to be registered on the WiFi4EU.eu web portal. This portal was opened on the 20 March (see the press release) and over

17,000 municipalities have already registered. The selection will be based on a 'first-come first-served' basis. To ensure a balanced geographical distribution among Member States, each country will obtain a minimum of 15 and maximum of 95 vouchers. This is the first of a total of five calls that will be published till 2020. More details are in the Questions and Answers, Factsheet, and video. Commission proposes to boost further social dialogue within large transnational companies

The European Commission has published today an evaluation of the European Works Council Directive (recast Directive 2009/38/EC), adopted in 2009, confirming its added value for workers and companies. European Works Councils are bodies of social dialogue within large transnational companies. Through them, management informs and consults workers on the progress of the business and any significant decision at European level that could affect their employment or working conditions. In light of the positive evaluation of these European Works Councils, the Commission proposes to create a practical handbook and provide €7 million funding to social partners to support the implementation of the Directive and the effectiveness of European Works Councils. Marianne Thyssen, Commissioner for Employment, Social Affairs, Skills and Labour Mobility, commented: "We should build on good practice among companies already using European Works Councils and on the knowledge of EU social partners to stimulate more take-up of this important instrument and to make existing ones even more effective. And the Commission will put its money where its mouth is: We will dedicate a €7 million grant programme in 2019 to support the implementation of the handbook and step up our support to social dialogue in the EU." All stakeholders, including national authorities and social partners, consider the rules under the new Directive relevant and find they offer a significant contribution to ensuring transnational social dialogue at company level. According to the report, information for workers improved in terms of quality and scope. The Commission also finds that the effectiveness of the consultation procedure can still be improved. The evaluation report will now be shared with the European Parliament and the Council. (For more information: Christian Wigand– Tel.: +32 229 62253; Sara Soumillion – Tel.: + 32 229 67094)

Corina Crețu, commissaire chargée de la politique régionale, a déclaré: *"La sécurité est devenue l'un des principaux défis auxquels nous devons faire face en tant qu'Union. La proposition de la Commission pour le prochain budget à long terme de l'UE comprend une augmentation significative des investissements dans la sécurité, pour faire face à des menaces telles que le terrorisme et la radicalisation. Mais la politique de cohésion et ses actions innovatrices urbaines peuvent déjà contribuer à des espaces publics plus sûrs dans la période de financement actuelle. Mergers: Commission clears acquisition of General Cable by Prysmian

The European Commission has approved, under the EU Merger Regulation, the acquisition of General Cable of the US by Prysmian of Italy. Both Prysmian and General Cable are active worldwide in the development, manufacturing, and supply of cables used in the energy and telecommunications industries. The Commission's investigation focused on the companies' overlapping activities in optical fibre cables, general wiring cables, and power cables of different voltages, both for submarine and underground use. The Commission concluded that the proposed acquisition would raise no competition concerns as a number of strong competitors will remain in the market after the transaction. The transaction was examined under the normal merger review procedure. Mergers: Commission clears acquisition of Altamira Cyprus by Cyprus Cooperative Bank and Apollo Management

The European Commission has approved, under the EU Merger Regulation, the acquisition of Altamira Cyprus by Cyprus Cooperative Bank ("CCB"), both of Cyprus, and Apollo Capital Management, L.P. ("Apollo") of the US. Altamira Cyprus is active in the management, enforcement and recovery of non-performing loans, currently from CCB only. It intends to expand its activities to provide its services to other banks and financial institutions in Cyprus. CCB is a bank, active in retail and corporate banking and bankassurance, exclusively in Cyprus. Apollo is a group of global investment funds. The Commission concluded that the proposed transaction would raise no competition concerns as it would increase the number of non-performing loan management service providers in Cyprus, thus improving the competitive environment. STATEMENTS

Déclaration de la Commissaire Thyssen suite aux votes au Conseil et au Parlement européen en faveur de la proposition de la Commission concernant le soutien financier aux anciens travailleurs de Caterpillar

"Je suis très heureuse de voir que, moins de deux mois après notre proposition et deux semaines après que le Parlement européen l'ait soutenue, les Etats-Membres aient aujourd'hui approuvé un soutien financier de 4,6 millions d'euros du Fonds européen d'ajustement à la mondialisation \(FEM\) en faveur des travailleurs de Caterpillar ayant perdu leur emploi. Ce soutien financier sera un outil essentiel pour permettre aux 2 300 travailleurs licenciés à trouver un nouvel emploi. En mars, la Commission a proposé de fournir une aide européenne à la Belgique pour des mesures d'accompagnement à la recherche d'emploi et de réapprentissage. Ces mesures mettent l'accent sur les priorités de développement de Charleroi telles que définies dans le plan CatCh. Le soutien du FEM permettra de couvrir 60% du montant nécessaire, le reste provenant du budget régional de la Wallonie. L'aide du FEM est une démonstration très concrète de la solidarité de l'UE envers les travailleurs à Charleroi, qui font face à une perturbation économique majeure. Je suis donc très contente que dans notre proposition de budget pour la période 2021-2027 présentée le 2 mai dernier, nous ayons augmenté le montant dont disposera ce Fonds, ce qui nous permettra de continuer à soutenir des travailleurs dans des moments difficiles, comme c'est le cas pour les anciens travailleurs de Caterpillar aujourd'hui."
