Investment Plan for Europe: largest financing amount to date for trains in Austria

The European Investment Bank (EIB) has signed an agreement under the Investment Plan in the transport sector today. The €500 million loan – the largest transaction under the European Fund for Strategic Investments (EFSI) to date – will allow Austrian train company ÖBB- Personenverkehr AG to purchase new rolling stock. ÖBB will use the loan to purchase new Cityjet train sets for local and regional services. European Commissioner for Transport Violeta Bulc said: “This project not only supports investment and job creation in Europe, it also enables the transition to low emission mobility. These new trains will contribute to the attractiveness of the rail sector in Austria. All in all, this is good news for Austrian commuters and for the environment.” (For more information see the Investment Plan website or contact Johannes Bahrke – Tel.: +32 229 58615; Siobhán Millbright – Tel.: +32 229 57361)

Global Forum agree on measures to tackle steel overcapacity

The Global Forum on Steel Excess Capacity bringing together 33 economies – all G20 members, some other interested OECD countries and all the world’s major steel producers – agreed yesterday in a meeting in Berlin on an ambitious package of concrete policy solutions to tackle the pressing issue of global overcapacity in the steel sector. According to the agreed package, Global Forum members must ensure market-based outcomes in the steel industry, refrain from market-distorting subsidies and other government support measures that contribute to overcapacity, provide a level playing field between state-owned and private companies, and enact effective adjustment policies. These steps are underpinned by a robust monitoring mechanism on capacity and policy developments to track implementation in 2018 and 2019. Commissioner for Trade Cecilia Malmström said: “The problem of excess capacity of steel has real effects on people’s lives – especially those who become unemployed. This is a global challenge, and it has to be dealt with accordingly. In the run-up to the World Trade Organisation’s 11th Ministerial Conference in Buenos Aires, this success underlines the importance of effective multilateral cooperation to solve global problems. Of course, our work is not yet done. Now we need to walk the talk.” As a matter of priority, the Global Forum members should now ensure swift application of the agreed principles and recommendations and share – in the first half of 2018 – the information on the steps taken to eliminate market-distorting subsidies. The overcapacity issue was raised on several occasions by President Juncker at both bilateral and multilateral level, notably during the last two G20 Summits. Launched in December 2016 after a call by G20 Leaders in the Hangzhou, the Forum was reinforced by the outcomes of the July 2017 G20 Hamburg Summit. The Global Forum will continue meeting at least three times per year to monitor the implementation of the today’s commitments. The press

EU and its Arctic partners agree to prevent unregulated fishing in high seas

The European Union, together with partners engaged in Arctic matters (Canada, China, the Kingdom of Denmark, Iceland, Japan, Korea, Norway, the Russian Federation and the United States), last night succeeded in reaching an international agreement to prevent unregulated commercial fishing in the Arctic high seas. That is, until sufficient scientific information to support the sustainable exploitation of fish stocks in the region is available. The Arctic region is warming at almost twice the global average rate, causing a change in the size and distribution of fish stocks. As a result, the Arctic high seas potentially become more attractive for commercial fisheries in the medium to long term. However, until present, most of the Arctic high seas were not covered by any international conservation and management regime. The agreement, reached in Washington DC at the fifth and final round of negotiations, will be a first step towards the creation of regional fisheries management organisations for the Central Arctic Ocean, to ensure that any future fishing is carried out sustainably. Karmenu Vella, Commissioner for the Environment, Fisheries and Maritime Affairs, said: “The commitment and leadership shown by all parties have made it possible to reach this historic agreement. It will fill an important gap in the international ocean governance framework and will safeguard fragile marine ecosystems for future generations.” The agreement is fully in line with the European Union’s long-standing position – emphasised recently at the EU-hosted Our Ocean Conference in Malta in October – that no commercial fisheries should begin in the Arctic high seas before a science-based and precautionary management regime is in place. Sound stewardship of the high seas has a prominent place in the EU’s Arctic policy and Ocean Governance policy, as regards a responsible approach towards utilizing Arctic marine resources, while respecting the rights of indigenous peoples. The agreement will enter into force when all ten Parties have signed and ratified the agreement. (For more information: Enrico Brivio – Tel.: +32 229 56172; Iris Petsa – Tel.: +32 229 93321)

Financial services: Commission follows up on the Call for Evidence and consults on supervisory reporting

The Commission is today following up on its stock-taking exercise of financial regulation with a new report on Call for Evidence on EU financial services. The Call for Evidence was launched in 2015 to assess whether rules adopted since the financial crisis were working as intended. It led to new measures to make financial rules more proportionate and to reduce unnecessary regulatory constraints on market players. In this context, the Commission is today also launching a public consultation on supervisory reporting requirements. The aim is to assess the effectiveness of reporting, which supervisors in the EU need from financial market players. This consultation is a response to concerns raised in the Call for Evidence about the burden and costs that such requirements impose on market players. Valdis Dombrovskis, Vice President in charge of Financial Stability, Financial Services and Capital Markets Union, said: “With our Call for Evidence we were the first to assess the overall impact of financial services regulation on the market. We will continue to push for more coherent supervision and regulation across the board and ensure that EU financial services rules remain fit for purpose.” Jyrki Katainen, Vice-President in charge of Jobs, Growth, Investment and Competitiveness said: “The Call for Evidence confirmed that we can create better and more growth-friendly regulation. We can do so by developing and adjusting policies based on factual evidence and by involving interested parties. This in turn fosters job creation, growth and investment, while safeguarding financial stability and protecting both consumers and investors.” More information on the consultation and the report can be found online. La Commission approuve une nouvelle indication géographique protégée de Croatie

La Commission européenne a approuvé la demande d’inscription du «Međimursko meso ‘z tiblice» dans le registre des indications géographiques protégées (IGP). Produit dans le comté de Međimurje dans le nord-ouest de la Croatie, la «Međimursko meso ‘z tiblice» est une charcuterie à base de viande de porc salée et assaisonnée et d’une préparation de lard appelé «slanina». Dans la région de Međimurje, l’élevage porcin a toujours été le secteur d’élevage le plus important et l’est resté jusqu’à aujourd’hui. La spécificité du «Međimursko meso ‘z tiblice» résulte précisément de son mode traditionnel de préparation qui consiste à superposer des couches successives de viande de porc et de slanina jusqu’au sommet du récipient. Cette nouvelle appellation va rejoindre plus de 1415 produits déjà protégés dont la liste est disponible dans la base de données DOOR. Mergers: Commission approves acquisition of joint control over SMATRICS and E-Mobility Provider Austria by VERBUND and OMV

The European Commission has approved, under the EU Merger Regulation, the acquisition of joint control over SMATRICS GmbH & Co KG and E-Mobility Provider Austria GmbH, the latter being the unlimited partner of SMATRICS, by VERBUND AG and OMV Aktiengesellschaft, all of Austria. SMATRICS provides e-mobility services across Austria and will constitute a full-function joint venture operating on the market autonomously. E-mobility services are needed for operating electric vehicles, including for example the provision of charging infrastructure. VERBUND is an electricity supply company, whose core business includes generating and transmitting electricity, as well as electricity trading. OMV is an integrated oil and gas company, active across the entire crude oil and natural gas value chain. The Commission concluded that the proposed acquisition would raise no competition concerns because of the limited overlap between the companies’ activities and the negligible actual or foreseen activities of the joint venture in the European Economic Area. The transaction was examined under the simplified merger review procedure. More information is available on the Commission’s competition website, in the public case register under the case number M.8618. Mergers: Commission clears acquisition of three regional savings banks in Italy by Cariparma.

The European Commission has approved, under the EU Merger Regulation, the acquisition of three Italian savings banks (Cassa di Risparmio di Cesena S.p.A., Cassa di Risparmio di Rimini S.p.A. and Cassa di Risparmio di San Miniato S.p.A.) by Crédit Agricole Cariparma S.p.A. (“Cariparma”), also of Italy. The three banks being acquired are mainly active in retail banking in North and Central Italy. Cariparma, an Italian subsidiary of Crédit Agricole S.A., is a provider of a complete range of financial services in Italy. The acquisition is taking place in the context of an agreement with the Voluntary Scheme of the Interbank Deposit Fund. The Commission concluded that the proposed transaction would raise no competition concerns because there are only minor horizontal overlaps or vertical relationships between the combined activities of these four banks. The transaction was examined under the simplified merger review procedure. More information is available on the Commission’s competition website, in the public case register under the case number M.8639. STATEMENTS

International Day of Persons with Disabilities: Statement by Commissioner Thyssen

“By 2020, one in five Europeans is expected to experience some degree of disability. Enabling people with disabilities to participate fully in society is one of the major societal challenges we face – there is still a long way to go in fighting the social exclusion of people with disabilities. Inclusive growth and social fairness are at the core of the European Commission’s agenda, as confirmed by the recent proclamation of the European Pillar of Social Rights. [...] The European Union continues to stand by its obligations under the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. As part of the European Disability Strategy 2010-2020 this European Commission has notably taken important initiatives to help removing barriers to accessibility for people with disabilities. Two years ago I presented my proposal for a European Accessibility Act, which aims at making key products and services accessible for people with disabilities. It is now high time for my proposal to be adopted by all EU institutions.” The full statement can be found here. On 4 and 5 December, the Commission organises a European Day for People with Disabilities, including the yearly Access City Award ceremony. More information on both events is available here. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Vice-President Ansip and Commissioner Gabriel at Telecoms Council to urge progress in spectrum coordination

On Monday, Ministers in charge of Transport, Telecommunications and Energy issues will discuss several key digital and telecoms files. Both Vice-President for Digital Single Market Andrus Ansip and Commissioner for Digital Economy and Society Mariya Gabriel are participating in the Council meeting to urge Ministers to progress on key legislation – the European Electronic Communications Code and spectrum coordination. Vice-President Ansip said: “Without coordinated spectrum, we will be lagging behind in deploying 5G and rolling out IoT solutions. Hence, I welcome the calls from EU leaders to agree on the new telecoms code as soon as possible. We cannot afford losing more time.” Commissioner Gabriel said: “High-speed connectivity and good spectrum coordination are the backbone of the Digital Single Market. Europe has a lot to win with the new telecoms rules. The direct benefits vary from economic growth to improved health care and intelligent energy consumption based on real-time needs.” Other topics touched upon on the Council meeting will be the free flow of non-personal data, future investment policy for digitalisation beyond 2020, and the progress report on the proposed e-Privacy rules. The Council will also adopt a general approach on the BEREC Regulation, which will strengthen EU level coordination of electronic communications. The Ministers will additionally be updated on the Council Conclusions and Action Plan on Cybersecurity (see more on cyber security) and the incoming Bulgarian Presidency will present its work programme. More information on spectrum coordination is available in the factsheets on spectrum and connectivity. An overview of the Digital Single Market is available in the state of play factsheet; additional factsheets can be found here. La Coalition pour les compétences et les emplois numériques célèbre sa première année de réalisations

La Coalition pour les compétences et les emplois numériques a été lancée il y a exactement un an avec les États membres, les entreprises, les partenaires sociaux, les ONG et les professionnels de l'éducation pour répondre à la forte demande en matière de compétences numériques en Europe. La Commission européenne organisera le 7 décembre une conférence à Bruxelles pour marquer cette étape et discuter des progrès réalisés jusqu'à présent. Au cours de la conférence, Mariya Gabriel, commissaire à l'économie et à la société numériques, présentera sa vision de la future politique sur les compétences numériques et lancera officiellement l'initiative de “stages pour des opportunités numériques”. Ce projet pilote offrira des stages dans un autre pays de l'UE à plus de 6 000 étudiants et récemment diplômés en 2018-2020. La commissaire remettra également les Prix européens 2017 sur les compétences numériques à cinq projets exceptionnels qui ont renforcé les compétences numériques des Européens dans quatre catégories: les compétences numériques

pour les citoyens, les compétences numériques pour la main-d'œuvre, les compétences numériques pour les professionnels des technologies de l'information et de la communication (TIC) et les compétences numériques dans l'éducation. Un prix spécial sera décerné à l'un des projets qui promeut les compétences numériques chez les femmes et les jeunes filles afin de souligner l'importance qu'il y a à combler l'écart entre les sexes dans le secteur numérique. La conférence comprendra des panels sur les investissements futurs nécessaires dans les compétences numériques. En outre, des ateliers interactifs se concentreront sur la manière de sensibiliser les citoyens ainsi que les petites et moyennes entreprises aux compétences numériques, et sur des solutions pour mieux les introduire dans l'éducation. Les journalistes peuvent s'inscrire à l'événement ici. Plus de détails et le programme complet sont disponibles ici. Plus d'informations sur les finalistes des Prix européens sur les compétences numériques 2017 sont disponibles ici. Verena Ross Keynote Address at ASIFMA Annual Conference 2017

Verena Ross, ESMA Executive Director, gave a keynote address at the ASIFMA Annual Conference 2017 in Hong Kong. The two-day conference is one of the largest fora to discuss issues influencing the development of Asia's capital markets.

In a wide-ranging speech, Ms. Ross focused her remarks on three main areas;

- The EU regulatory framework and the role of ESMA;
- The work carried out by ESMA in the context of third country frameworks and how these can be further strengthened;
- Some of the implications of the EU regulation on Asian firms.

In her address, Ms. Ross touched upon several issues of particular relevance of Asian firms, namely MiFIDII, EMIR and LEI's. Addressing the implementation on January 3rd of MiFIDII, Ms. Ross said, "Asian-headquartered firms with branches or subsidiaries providing investment services in the EU will be directly subject to the new MiFID requirements. But MiFID II obligations for Asia-based institutions are often indirect, arising by virtue of them dealing with European firms or counterparties on a cross border basis for example."

Cooperativa de Ahorro y Préstamo Tosepantomin \(Mexico\), winner of the 2017 European Microfinance Award

8th European Microfinance Award

H.R.H. Maria Teresa, Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, H.R.H Hereditary Grand Duke Guillaume of Luxembourg, Mr Romain Schneider, Luxembourg Minister for Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs and EIB President, Werner Hoyer are the honored guests to the 8th edition of the Microfinance Awards ceremony. This edition is focused in microfinance for housing.

30/11/2017

[Luxembourg]

37 microfinance institutions from 23 developing countries contended for this award, which this year focussed on “microfinance for housing”.

The 2017 European Microfinance Award honours a microfinance institution, based in a developing country, that implemented innovative solutions to support access to better quality residential housing for low income, vulnerable and excluded groups, with no or limited access to housing finance in the mainstream sector.

The Cooperativa de Ahorro y Préstamo Tosepantomin helps marginalised rural Mexican communities with their residential housing building projects by offering savings and home loan products paired with technical support. The cooperative is also recognised for its promotion of eco-friendly building techniques.

This award, a EUR 100,000 prize from the Directorate for Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs of Luxembourg's Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, was given at a ceremony held at the European Investment Bank, in the presence of Their Royal Highnesses the Grand Duchess and the Hereditary Grand Duke.

The President of the High Jury, His Royal Highness the Hereditary Grand Duke, has said he was “very impressed by the respect this initiative shows for the natural environment and its degree of rooting in the local community, which fosters the trust of indigenous populations”.

The Award, which pays tribute to the importance of microfinance in the fight against poverty, addresses economic and social issues impacting low-income families and communities. What caught the attention of Mr Romain Schneider, Minister for Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs and also a member of the Grand Jury: “This cooperative does not only adopt a holistic approach to the multiple housing issues, but also promotes environmental responsibility in a truly remarkable way.”

For his part, Dr Werner Hoyer, President of the European Investment Bank, also underscores the importance of such an award for the sector. “With at least 1.6 billion people living in substandard housing conditions, the need for better housing solutions is pressing. The microfinance sector, which responds to the needs of the financially excluded, is heeding the call to provide housing loans to low-income groups unserved by the traditional financial sector. I am convinced that we can all learn from the example set by the contestants in this year's competition, and especially by the winner of the 2017 Award: Cooperativa de Ahorro y Préstamo Tosepantomin.”

New this year, the two finalists, Mibanco from Peru and The First MicroFinance Bank- Afghanistan, each received EUR 10,000.

European Microfinance Award

The only one of its kind in the world, the European Microfinance Award was launched in October 2005 by the Directorate for Development Cooperation and Humanitarian Affairs of the Luxembourg Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs to nurture innovative microfinance initiatives. It is jointly organised by the Ministry of Foreign and European Affairs, the European Microfinance Platform (e-MFP) and the Inclusive Finance Network Luxembourg (InFiNe.lu).

What role for waste incineration in the circular economy?

Local governments support energy recovery while phasing out old and inefficient incineration plants and promoting recycling Waste-to-energy is acknowledged to be a necessary tool to move towards a more sustainable circular economy as it helps avoiding landfilling and generates energy. However, local governments ask to strictly respect the waste hierarchy putting waste prevention first. Members are in favour of creating stable markets for products and materials based on secondary raw materials and of making every effort to reduce landfilling.

Members of the European Committee of the Regions have adopted an opinion on ‘The role of waste-to-energy in the circular economy’ by rapporteur Kata Tűttő (HU/PES), municipal councillor from Budapest – District 12. Waste-to-energy is the process of recovering energy from waste combustion.

Local leaders baseline is clear. The waste hierarchy, which sets up priority actions for more resource efficiency and less waste, must be the guiding principle in waste management. On top of the hierarchy is waste prevention, followed by product reuse, product recycle, energy recovery and landfilling as the less optimal scenario.

“Landfilling waste is the worst thing that we can do because things we throw away can actually be reused, recycled or transformed into energy”, said rapporteur Kata Tűttő. “With modern waste-to-energy treatments municipal waste can be transformed into electricity, heat or biogas”, added the Budapest city councillor.

Cities and regions recommend Member States with little or no incineration capacity not to develop energy recovery unless it is under very careful planning and to prioritise separate collection and recycling programmes instead.

Local leaders show concern over how and by whom, waste management costs are to be borne. European cities and regions reiterate the need to create stable markets for products and materials based on secondary raw materials.

The use of waste as fuel for heating households is a major problem for public health and the environment. Energy poverty is often the main reason for private dwellings to use waste for heating. The EU’s assembly of local and regional representatives urges the European Commission to incorporate efforts to combat energy poverty into waste-to-energy activities and to adopt awareness raising strategies.

Local leaders support waste shipments between Members States for energy recovery purposes as long as it avoids or reduces landfilling or helps making better use of existing facilities. However, distance from the waste location to the incineration plant should be limited to avoid environmental damage.

Members of the CoR request the European Commission to ensure Members States involve local and regional authorities closely in drawing up waste management strategies.
