

Fellowships launched to explore how AI could change the way scientists drive new discoveries

New government-funded fellowships will see researchers explore how AI can change the way we conduct research while 23 projects have been awarded funding to explore wider research and innovation.