

Fire dragon leads revitalisation efforts

The Tai Hang Fire Dragon will once again dance during the Mid-Autumn Festival. While the spectacle can only be seen for a limited time, the public can visit the Tai Hang Fire Dragon Heritage Centre throughout the year.

The centre attracts over 2,500 visitors every month and serves as a shining example of why the Development Bureau is taking steps to enhance its Revitalising Historic Buildings Through Partnership Scheme that aims to breathe new life into such historic buildings.

Commissioner for Heritage Ivanhoe Chang spoke to news.gov.hk about the enhancement measures, while Tai Hang Fire Dragon Heritage Centre Chief Operating Officer Allen Tong talks about the craftsmanship of the fire dragon and the operation of the heritage centre.

The story is available at www.news.gov.hk/eng/feature/ today (September 24) in text and video format.
