

Firms which took customers' deposits but didn't fit their kitchens are shut down following phoenix concerns

Insolvency Service investigations found the Manchester-based companies took upfront payments from more than 20 customers, but there is no evidence they installed the kitchens as promised