

First compensation offered to infected blood victims after decades of injustice

Government reaches a historic milestone as the first compensation payments are accepted by victims of infected blood scandal.