

Full steam ahead for Great British Railways as first branded train unveiled

First Great British Railways-branded train unveiled as services move into public ownership, with new branding rolling out across England's rail network.