

Glasgow Observatory releases information

The UK Geoenergy Observatory in Glasgow has released data and images from up to 199 metres below the surface of the city.

The data will help scientists understand the subsurface better and shed light on how mine water heat could be used as a renewable energy source for homes and industry.