

Government action to protect children from abusive parents

Children exposed to the family courts will be protected from harm under plans by the Government to repeal the presumption of parental involvement (22 October).