

Government cautions public on fake information online about launch of “Hong Kong Coin” purported to be announced by CE

A Government spokesman today (March 6) cautioned the public not to believe in the fake information being circulated online about the "launch of National Hong Kong Coin" on blockchain purported to be announced by the Chief Executive. The Government clarified that the information is totally fictitious with fraudulent intent, and strongly condemned those who have attempted to distribute fake information in the name of the Chief Executive.

The spokesman reminded members of the public to remain vigilant and verify the authenticity of such content.

The incident has been referred to the Police for a follow-up investigation.
