

Government launches consultation on making public services quicker, easier and more secure to access with digital ID

The Government has launched a consultation asking the public to share their views on how digital ID is used to make public services quicker, easier and more secure to access.