

Government moves to protect children from abusive parents through new Courts and Tribunals Bill

Children will be better protected from abusive parents as the Government moves to abolish the presumption of parental involvement in the new Courts and Tribunal Bill – a landmark piece of legislation to fix the justice system.