

Government outlines proposed reforms of Industry Training Boards to boost skills

Industry voices and stakeholders are being asked to shape the future of skills training as a new consultation proposes the merger of construction and engineering construction training boards.