

Government reveals effective measures to save lives and prevent railway suicides

Improved safety measures and increased support for people in crisis will help rail industry prevent and respond to traumatic events.