

Government to take over redress for convicted postmasters from Post Office

All postmasters who have had their convictions overturned will now have their conviction claims administered by the government