

Home Office and IBM to partner on Emergency Services Network

Frontline emergency services will benefit from a new communications network that will modernise how they work together.