

Jobs boost as UK set to build military aircraft for United States for first time in over fifty years

More than 150 jobs to be created in Birmingham by new contract to deliver advanced surveillance aircraft for US Air Force, with a further 190 jobs supported across the UK