

Latest REACT-2 study findings show that almost all double vaccinated people in England have antibodies to coronavirus

New findings from the REACT-2 study, a major coronavirus antibody surveillance survey, have shown the impact of England's vaccination programme on antibodies in the population.