

Loophole closed to keep terrorists and extremists out of the UK

New law now prevents British citizenship being reinstated automatically to people considered a national security risk following a successful initial appeal.