

Major expansion of colleges to train next generation of workers

Local colleges set to receive £570 million to expand training facilities and places to train the next generation of skilled workers