

Charity suspends 'vital' medical aid in 2 Mosul hospitals

MOSUL: Medical charity Doctors Without Borders announced on Wednesday the suspension of "vital" medical activities in two hospitals in the war-scarred city of Mosul, blaming Iraq's bureaucracy of delaying the delivery of supplies.

"Essential medical activities have been suspended at two health facilities ... after stocks of medicines and supplies ran critically low," according to an MSF press release.

The group's activities are crucial for the major city in northern Iraq, where the health care sector is struggling to recover from years of war and neglect.

Iranian envoy urges UK to abide by terms of nuclear deal

LONDON: The UK, France, and Germany risk the collapse of the joint comprehensive plan of action nuclear deal if they fail to lift sanctions on Iranian missile development as agreed, said Mehdi Hosseini Matin, Tehran's charge d'affaires to London.

Israel's deadly attacks on Jenin might be a war crime, UN experts say

NEW YORK CITY: Israel's assault on the Jenin refugee camp in the occupied West Bank this week, which killed at least 12 Palestinians including five children, might constitute a war crime, UN experts said on Wednesday.

Houses, apartment buildings and other infrastructure were damaged during two days of raids on Monday and Tuesday, and more than 4,000 Palestinians were forced to flee.

Houthis admit executing 16, burying bodies in Amran mass grave

AL-MUKALLA: The bodies of 16 people thought to have been abducted and executed by the Iran-backed Houthis more than a decade ago have been recovered in the northern Yemeni province of Amran.

Human rights groups, media reports, and officials said the bodies were found at a mass grave in a cave in the Harf Sufyan District used by the militia group in 2010 to bury its victims.

Palestinians mourn dead, vow to rebuild Jenin camp as IDF withdraws troops

RAMALLAH: The Israel Defense Forces declared the end of a large-scale military operation at a refugee camp in Jenin in the occupied West Bank on Wednesday, that left 12 Palestinians and one Israeli soldier dead.

Thousands of Palestinian mourners joined a funeral procession where militants fired into the air and the crowd chanted: "With our souls and blood, we will sacrifice for you, martyr."
