

Military conducts daring parachute drop to deliver critical medical support to Tristan da Cunha

An Army specialist team has parachuted onto Tristan da Cunha to deliver critical medical support after it was confirmed that one British national on the island was suspected of contracting Hantavirus.