

Military Satellite SKYNET 6A passes initial phase of testing

The SKYNET 6 programme is working closely with industry to exploit technological advancements to deliver the next generation of military communication satellites.