

Ministry of Defence seeks to maximise Reserves contribution through new review

The specialist contribution military reservists have made across society during Britain's battle against coronavirus will help inform a review examining how defence can maximise the skills of its Reserve Forces.