

National Democracy Week 2019

This year's National Democracy Week will kick off on Monday 14th October 2019. The week is being led by Democratic Engagement Champions, organisations across the UK who are passionate about democratic engagement.

National Democracy Week is the perfect opportunity to raise awareness of what democracy means, and how we can encourage more people to take part.

Whether you're hosting a single event or a whole programme of activities, we have one shared goal:

Regardless of who we are or where we are from, we must work together to ensure that every member of society has an equal chance to participate in our democracy and to have their say.
