

New £13m police centre to tackle violence against women and girls

Government announces new intelligence-led national policing centre to put the experiences of victims at the heart of police investigations.