

New law to restrict protests outside public office holders' homes

A new law will restrict protests outside the homes of public office holders, in response to growing harassment and intimidation of those in British politics.